Tell us the differences between uncontrolled and con

Uncontrolled components are form inputs whose state is managed by the DOM, whereas controlled React. Controlled components are typically preferred because they provide a more predictable user form input validation and submission.